

Psalm 103:7

He made known His ways to Moses,
His deeds to the people of Israel.

Father God, my question is why the difference? It must be because Moses drew closer to God, listened with his heart, and practiced obedience. The children of Israel most of the time, did none of these. So they knew the laws that God spoke on the mountain of fire, asking that they be written down for all to see. But Moses drew near, he respected and loved and worshipped. Moses sought after God with his whole heart and even God said that Moses was a man after his own heart. Moses began to know the ways of God; he knew those even without words. Knowing the ways of someone can only happen when time is spent together, when what someone believes and says is visible. It requires closeness and perseverance and seeking, That's the heart I want, Lord Jesus, nothing less. Amen.
