

II Corinthians 15:16

Therefore we do not lose heart. Though outwardly we are wasting away, yet inwardly, we are being renewed day by day.

Father God, no one needs to tell me what wasting away means. I am learning this daily...it began with little things just a few years ago, and now that wasting away has grown prominent. Because it is often painful in its process, sometimes leaving me dependent on others, and sometimes fearful...thank you for saying there is a part of me that is being renewed at the same time. That part of me has to do with my relationship with you, with sensing you are with me and love me and are preparing me to someday move out of the wasting away body and into your presence. Make that inward part of me strong, Lord, and patient, and constantly seeking ways to help others. I do thank you for such mercy. Amen.
