

Psalm 32:6

Therefore let all the godly pray to You while You may be found. Surely when great waters rise, they will not come near.

Father God...this is a practical and important command you are giving, with a promise. It does not say ‘if’ great waters rise, but ‘when’. Sometimes we look at the lives of other people and they seem to be protected from the great waters of life...those things that so overwhelm us, sometimes sudden and unexpected, often in areas we would not have thought...the waters that could flood and drown us, waters that would wash out our firm standing, troubles that get larger and larger until we wonder if things could get any worse...and not if, but when...so we can expect that this is part of life in a fallen world. All people experience these hard experiences. This opening statement, Father, talks about the prayer of the godly, prayers that have already been prayed to you, the one to be found, the God of a godly person; always powerful and always connected. Father, teach me how to be that godly person. Amen.
